

SOS-UK Skills Survey 2023-24

90%

Think that universities and colleges should promote sustainable development

Students said it was important to be taught knowledge and skills in:

90%

Communicating complex information

93%

Planning for the long and short term

87%

Understanding how to create change

69%

Would choose to take £1000 salary cut to work for a company with a strong environmental and social record

More than half of students consider how seriously a university takes environmental and global issues important when choosing a place to study.

Students believe coursework or dissertations are the most relevant ways of including the skills and knowledge to help the environment

81%

Agree that university courses should develop students' social and environmental skills

77% agree

Agree that UCEM takes action to limit the negative impacts it has on the environment and society

71%

Would like to learn more about Sustainable development

79%

Said it was fairly important that their future employer makes a difference in a social and environmental issues

What's being taught?

72%

Using resources to limit environment impact

63%

Ethical issues as linked to subject

77%

Planning for the long and short term